Japan today, in the words of foreign business

Mikael Palmquist
President & CEO
IKEA Japan K.K.

It is very important now we have been so welcome and appreciated by so many customers, so it is an important market for IKEA. And, looking into the future, it seems that the home is becoming more important, that people are spending more time at home, which is beneficial for IKEA since we want to offer a better everyday life at home for many people.

So, I see positively on the future in Japan from an IKEA point of view.

Richard Collasse
President and Representative Director
CHANEL K.K.

The fact that sales at CHANEL were virtually unaffected by the Great East Japan Earthquake is a testament to the sheer strength and resilience of the Japanese market.

The sensitivity and commitment to fashion of the Japanese people make it the ideal venue for test marketing, and success in Japan significantly impacts success in surrounding Asian markets, including that of China. For this reason, the Japanese market is one of incredible importance for CHANEL. This remains unchanged.

Though it is highly unfortunate that Japan has had to endure the tragic earthquake and tsunami, I firmly believe that it will help raise awareness of safety and security among the Japanese people, enabling them to overcome this disaster.

Zeng Ming
Vice President
Alibaba Group

China is Japan's largest partner in trade and commerce, so Japan's reconstruction efforts in the wake of the March disaster and its rapid economic recovery will certainly present a huge export opportunity for some specific business sectors in China. At the same time, disaster recovery and reconstruction efforts provide a solid guarantee of work for even more Chinese companies to enter the Japanese market, further strengthening the confidence of the Chinese people.

For us at Alibaba, Japan is a key strategic market in Asia. We truly believe that its economy will quickly recover to pre-disaster levels, and that its e-commerce will expand to even greater heights.

Albert Kirchmann
President & CEO
DAIMLER group

Mitsubishi Fuso Truck and Bus Corporation

The Japanese people have shown unbelievable determination to recover from the March 11 earthquake.

Japanese industry, too, is showing its resilience, and is returning even stronger from the crisis.

Despite the earthquake disaster, I have every confidence that Japanese products will maintain and extend their strong reputations around the world.

As before, Mitsubishi Fuso and our colleagues within Japanese industry will continue to deliver products known for high quality, technological innovation, efficiency, good design and environmental friendliness. The events of March 11 and their after effects will not change this. This is our commitment to our customers and all our partners around the world.

Japan offers foreign companies three windows of opportunity

1st Window Innovation Hub

- With its rapidly growing economy, Asia is becoming increasingly influential in the world economy. Japan, as a country in Asia, plays an important role as a "bridge nation" connecting Asia and the world, which contributes to Asia's growth.

- Japan has great potential to become a regional hub and a R&D center in Asia, as exchanges of personnel, goods and money accelerate within Asia.

Mitsubishi Regional Jet, a new concept from Japan for the skies of the world

Science and Technology Development Expenditure (Percentage of GDP)

2nd Window Business Platform

- Japan promises a safe and secure living environment as well as providing a high level and stable business environment.

Comparison of Infrastructure in Developed Countries

3rd Window Trend Setter

- Japan is a huge market with one of the world's largest economies. In addition, sectors with large growth potential exist in Japan, including health and tourism markets.

- Japanese consumers are sensitive to fashion and make new fashion a part of their lives quickly. Therefore, Japan offers a market for test marketing before entering Asian markets. Japan also attracts attention as a country with "soft power," which sets trends for fashion and entertainment content in Asia.

Despite the damages of above-ground facilities to around 1200 sections of Tohoku Shinkansen, Japan's bullet train, the operating company was dedicated to conducting inspection and restoration, and the efforts resulted in operations being sequentially resumed, starting with the least affected sections along the line.

49 days later, operations were fully resumed along the entire 713.7km* stretch of the Tohoku Shinkansen line from Tokyo to Shin-Aomori. * Distance between Tokyo and Shin-Aomori (km)

Early Earthquake Detection system

The Shinkansen Early Earthquake Detection system promotes and supports safety

Seismometers are installed in around 100 locations along the coastline where the JR East Shinkansen line runs. By detecting weaker initial tremors (P waves) which precede the major tremors (S waves) of an earthquake, the Shinkansen can be brought to an early stop.

The devices successfully made the Shinkansen safely reduce its speed and stop during the Great East Japan Earthquake.
